

WARRANT ISSUED FOR ARREST OF BRIGHAM H. ROBERTS.

Great Victory Scored by the Journal in Its Crusade in Behalf of the Purity of the American Home.

Accused Man Must Return to Utah or Suffer Extradition on a Charge of Unlawfully Living with Wife No. 3.

He Is Still in This City, but Has Written to an Official at Home That He Would Go Back There to Face Trial.

THE New York Journal, working in the interests of the purity and sanctity of the home, to protect American womanhood and to save the nation from an infamy in the eyes of civilization, to-day achieved a signal victory in the fight against Roberts, of Utah, and the chiefs of the Mormon Church who favor polygamy.

A warrant has been issued by County Attorney Putnam, of Salt Lake County, for the arrest of Brigham H. Roberts, the polygamist, Congressman-elect from Utah, now in this city.

If necessary requisition papers will be asked for to secure the return to Utah of the accused polygamist.

The charge is polygamy living with Maggie Shipp-Roberts, wife No. 3.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 10.—Despite the evasions of the officials before whom the information was laid against Roberts and notwithstanding the tremendous power wielded in the case by the high officials of the Mormon Church, who did their utmost to prevent the issuance of the warrant at this time, the Journal has compelled the proper officials to do their duty.

The information against Roberts was sworn to by Charles M. Owen.

County Attorney Putnam, of Salt Lake County, the county in which Maggie Shipp-Roberts lives, took a week to consider the information laid before him and to-day finally granted the warrant, which even Roberts' friends recognize means the death knell to his political hopes.

Evidence Is Convincing.

It was only because the evidence was so strong and convincing that the warrant was obtained.

Despite the denials of Mr. Roberts in the East, there is abundance of evidence to prove that it was fear of arrest that led to his departure from Utah.

It is believed, though, that he will return to Utah to face the charge of polygamy. He had employed attorneys before his departure, and they have been watching very closely the persons who have brought the charges against Roberts.

He wrote County Attorney W. H. Steeper a few days ago, and his friends made public a letter. A portion of it reads as follows:

"I see from dispatches in the New York Journal that you are endeavoring to arrest me before you for an extradition offense. I write to say that if you find it necessary in order to discharge your official duties to issue a warrant for such an offense against me, it will not be necessary for you to get out extradition papers, as I will at once return to Utah."

Roberts Never Paid His Fine.

Mr. Roberts was arrested for unlawfully living with a woman in 1887. He was released from custody upon putting up a bond for his appearance for trial. He went away and his bond was declared forfeited.

He returned on May 1, 1888, pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to the penitentiary in the Third District Court in Salt Lake City, and was also fined $300, which was not paid.

Dr. Mary Shipp-Roberts, the third wife, lives in a neat little cottage in a broad, quiet street in this city. She is a handsome woman with bright black eyes, light color, and a brilliant smile, which lights up a somewhat masculine type of face.

In an interview she refused to discuss the warrant, but said:

"I believe in a home, and I think the only place for a woman is her home. The only thing which makes a woman's life worth living is love, the love of some one whom she believes and trusts, and the love of her children."

"I have had seven children, and though I married Brigham Roberts, I was not a great deal of trouble and care. I would not have given, even in my hours of terrible struggle and discouragement, one hair of my small child's head for all the business success or social triumph in the world. A good husband, healthy children and a peaceful life are the things that help a woman to stand being alive."

A gentle lady told me just the other day that she wondered what it was that made the Mormon women look so peaceful and contented. The ideal. How could she keep knowing that it is our religion, the perfect faith and trust we have that everything is for the best? That gives us peace the world cannot know."

Polygamy Their Religion.

"Take this polygamy there is so much talk of just now. Gentlemen are always talking to me about how we live through it as we do. Why, it is our religion. That's all there is about it. If it wasn't we could never stand it in the world. We know that polygamy is right and that it is the will of God that we should live as we do, and we submit in patience and humility."

In Brigham H. Roberts' book, "New Witness for God," appears the following paragraph:

"In the life to come a man will build and inhabit, eat, drink, associate and be happy with his friends, and the power of endless increase will continue to the power and dominion of those who attain by their righteousness unto these privileges. What a revelation is here! Instead of the God-fearing of prohibition being one of the chief things that it is our religion, it is one of the chief means of man's exaltation and glory in that great eternity. Through it we attain to the right of presiding over eternal lives and the right of presiding over priest and patriarch, king and lord over his ever-increasing posterity."

HE WILL RETURN TO UTAH, FRIENDS SAY.

It is known that Brigham H. Roberts is still in the city.

A telegram from Salt Lake was delivered to him at 5 o'clock last night at the Plaza Hotel, where he was eating on George Q. Cannon, the real head of the Mormon Church.

He left the hotel shortly after receipt of the telegram, and went to the Concord street headquarters of the Eastern mission of the Mormon Church in Brooklyn.

Mr. Roberts would return to Utah if a warrant was out for his arrest, that he was a law-abiding citizen and did not intend to evade justice.

Mr. Roberts has been moving about Brooklyn, and this city since his arrival here, and his exact whereabouts have been kept secret.

The largest Brewery in the World, possessing the largest line of satisfactory brands of beer, the Anchor-Busch Brewing Co. is now in the city.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.

On the scaffold Becker protested his innocence, and alleged that the father of his second wife was the real murderer. Becker's crime was almost identical with that of Lutetig.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Albert Becker, the sausage maker who murdered his wife and afterward chopped up and boiled the body in order to hide the crime, was hanged to-day.